Aviator Wind is taking swift and appropriate action based on close monitoring of updates from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and is following guidance from local, state, and national officials to ensure the safety of all personnel.

With circumstances evolving quickly, we believe it is vital to keep our partners informed of the measures Aviator Wind has enacted to ensure the safety of our team and all those we interact with. In addition to enhanced sanitation measures and social distancing practices and in accordance with all state and local policies, our team has implemented robust operational changes, including the following:

- All site meetings are conducted remotely via web technology. No more than 10 people can meet in a work trailer or other setting at the project.
- For on-the-ground personnel ensuring the safe operation of this country's essential services, social distancing and shift-splitting protocols have been introduced when remote work is not possible.
- Critical staff in construction and operations have been provided with rigorous policies and resources to ensure their continued health and safety and that of their communities.
- Project contractors have implemented enhanced safety protocols for critical construction staff, including social distancing and shift-splitting policies.
- Rigorous hygiene practices, including proper hand-washing techniques, the avoidance of shaking hands, and sanitization of work surfaces, are continuously reinforced. Hand sanitizer and disinfectant wipes are readily available throughout the site.
- Workers are assessed throughout the day to confirm that they are fit for work. Assessments include the evaluation of personnel for COVID-19 symptoms.
- Site safety personnel have been provided with pandemic exposure PPE that includes latex gloves, eye protection, and N95 filtered respirator.
- Leadership is closely monitoring federal, state, and local guidance and will continue to swiftly update our procedures to maintain alignment with shifting recommendations as the situation continues to evolve.
- All Aviator Wind-sponsored events, ranging from conference participation to stakeholder dinners to community activities, have been canceled or postponed.
- Aviator Wind remote operations control capabilities remain unaffected and are available 24/7 to support the project remotely.

Adapting to and overcoming obstacles is where this company, this industry, and this country find the advantage. We thank you for your ongoing support and flexibility as we navigate these uncertain times together. Likewise, Aviator Wind hopes to return that support in the weeks, months, and years ahead.
